

ALMA GIANARRO

In terms of work, I define myself a genuine individual that enjoys working with a team and experimenting with different forms. This is rooted in my profound belief in the power of human connections and the exploration of new methods and ideas. I also hold the conviction that great works often springs forth from the simple act of observation our surroundings, even in life's simplest elements. I firmly believe that every single experience and observation contributes to a good creative inspiration and process. While this perspective might paint me as a dreamer, it, in fact, fuels my ambitious pursuit of innovative work and the exploration of uncharted territories."
